Rationale

While arriving at the ratings, ICRA has considered the consolidated financials of NIS Management Limited (NIS) with its five subsidiaries. NIS has provided a corporate guarantee for a subsidiary's loans. The ratings reaffirmation continues to factor in the extensive experience and established market position of NIS in the domestic security and facility management business, particularly in West Bengal and the company's long relationship with its reputed client base, leading to repeat orders. ICRA notes the Group's association with Government-sponsored skill development programme and vocational training, which help NIS in recruiting and training its large manpower. The ratings also factor in the company's conservative capital structure due to its healthy net worth, aided by sizeable accretion to reserves over the years despite a significant increase in working capital borrowings in the recent years.

NIS' consolidated operating income (OI) and profitability were adversely impacted by the pandemic in FY2021. In FY2022, the consolidated OI is estimated to have improved by around 12%, but the operating margin is estimated to have declined by around 50 basis points. In the current fiscal, with an improvement in the operating environment and higher order book, both revenues and profitability are likely to improve. The ratings, however, factor in the fragmented and intensely competitive nature of the private security industry due to the presence of many organised and unorganised players, which exposes the players to contract renewal risks and restricts pricing flexibility, exerting pressure on profit margins. The company also remains vulnerable to high geographical concentration risk as the major portion (78.6% in FY2022) of NIS' turnover is generated from West Bengal. Besides, the ratings are constrained by NIS' high working capital intensity of operations, which increased significantly in the recent years due to a rise in debtor days and income tax refunds receivables, resulting in an increase in borrowings.

The Stable outlook on the [ICRA]BBB+ rating reflects ICRA's opinion that NIS' established market position in the private security and facility management services are likely to support its revenues. Besides, healthy profits and cash accruals are likely to keep the company's debt coverage metrics and liquidity position comfortable, going forward.

Key rating drivers and their description

Credit strengths

Significant operational track record and established market position in the security services and facility management business, particularly in West Bengal – NIS is one of the established players in the organised security services and facility management industry. The company operates through 22 branch offices in 15 states. However, it has a strong market position particularly in West Bengal. NIS provides security service and facility management services including housekeeping, technical maintenance and support etc. The promoters, Mr. Debajit Choudhury and Mrs. Rina Choudhury, have vast experience in the manpower outsourcing and security services industry.

Established relationship with reputed clientele leads to repeat business – NIS has an established relationship with a wide customer base comprising several reputed Government as well as private companies. This helps the company get repeat business from the clients.

In-house training capabilities lend operational strength – NIS' subsidiary, Keertika Academy Private Limited, is involved in manpower training/ skill development under various Government schemes. Another subsidiary, Keertika Education & Associates LLP, runs vocational training institutes in West Bengal. The Group's presence in such activities lends operational strength to NIS, aiding in recruiting and training its large employee base of around 15,000 employees.

Conservative capital structure, notwithstanding a consistent increase in debt in recent years – NIS' consolidated debt level has increased consistently in the recent years mainly due to rising working capital requirements. Nevertheless, its healthy tangible net worth, aided by sizeable accretion to reserves over the years, kept the capital structure conservative, as reflected by a consolidated gearing of 0.8 times as on March 31, 2021.

Credit challenges

Fragmented and competitive nature of the industry gives rise to contract renewal risks and restricts pricing flexibility, keeping profitability under check – The company derives almost similar revenues from the security service and facility management segments. As per industry practice, the company follows a wage-plus-service-charge model for the manpower provided to the customers. The industry is fragmented and intensely competitive in nature with the presence of many organised and unorganised players. This leads to a significant price-based competition, giving rise to contract renewal risk and keeping margins under check, primarily in the security service segment. However, the facility management segment fetches higher margins owing to comparatively value-added nature of the services.

Exposure to geographical concentration risk as a major portion of revenue is derived from West Bengal – The company's sales are concentrated in West Bengal, from where it derived 78.6% of its total revenues in FY2022. Nevertheless, the company has a large customer base and is in the process of expanding its presence in other states.

Sizeable receivables leading to high working capital intensity of operations – NIS' debtor days consistently increased over the last five years to 133 days in FY2022 from 96 days in FY2018 (on a standalone basis), mainly because of delay in receipt of payments particularly from the Government and public sector customers. This along with sizeable income tax refunds receivables led to an increase in the company's net working capital relative to the operating income (NWC/OI) to 45% in FY2022 (provisional) from 20% in FY2018, on a standalone basis. This, in turn, led to a consistent increase in the company's borrowings to meet the incremental working capital requirements.

Liquidity position: Adequate

NIS' liquidity position is likely to remain adequate. Its consolidated cash flow from operation is estimated to have turned negative in FY2022 due to an increase in the working capital requirement. However, the same is likely to improve and remain healthy with a rise in profits, going forward. The consolidated long-term loan repayment obligation of the company will remain at Rs. 4-7 crore annually in the near-to-medium term, with a peak repayment in FY2025. However, sizeable free cash (around Rs. 14 crore on a standalone basis as on March 31, 2022) and a significant cushion in the working capital limit utilisation, with around Rs. 16 crore unutilised limit on an average during November 2021 to April 2022 are likely to support the liquidity position.

Rating sensitivities

Positive factors – ICRA may upgrade NIS' ratings if there is a significant improvement in its revenues, profits and liquidity position on a sustained basis.

Negative factors – Deterioration in the company's debt coverage metrics and/or a stretch in the working capital cycle, adversely impacting the liquidity position, may trigger ratings downgrade. Specific credit metrics that may lead to ratings downgrade include an interest coverage of less than 3.5 times on a sustained basis.
