About the company

REPL is engaged in the manufacture of architectural utilities like aluminum sliding & ladder sections, heat sinks, round/square/rectangle tubes, miscellaneous sections etc. The products of REPL mostly find use in construction, electronics, automotives, medical, transportation etc. The chief components for manufacture are aluminium ingots and aluminium scrap. The same are procured mostly from Mumbai or locally. Apart from these, furnace oil which is required to heat the furnace to the required temperatures for melting of aluminium is also required. Additionally chemicals are added like magnesium, degasers etc. to remove any impurities and/or alter the chemical composition of aluminium. The latter is done at the request of the customers who require the presence of alloys in the aluminium. Addition of chemicals also increases the hardness of the metal. The customers of REPL are also mostly located within Mumbai. The average credit period extended to customers and got from suppliers range between 20 days to 1 month. The company maintains inventory of about two months which stretches working capital thereby pressurizing liquidity.
